The Tassel is Worth the Hassle!!

To the Senior Class of 2006:

It was just like yesterday, we were the new kids in school. We had to learn our ways around, we had to learn all the rules. Where was the bathroom? Where was the next class? All of the silly questions, that just had to be asked. New kids from all around, as lost as you and I, but we didn't give up, all we did was try. We learned our way around, each time easier than before; that whole year went by, now look, we're sophomores.

Sophomore year, we got introduced to our trade. Safety glasses and work boots, and mistakes that were made. Some friends from last year weren't there anymore, they were in a different crowd, but new friends came in the door.

Junior year came up even faster than sophomore. Wow! The third year at school, Can you believe it? One more!

It's the summer of 2005. We're so close to going back. The year when we're the oldest, And we've got to stay on track. Whether it's college or a co-op career, entering the real world is what most of us fear. We'll have our senior prom. We'll miss our friends. We'll wish we were freshman, sophomores and juniors, again. We'll take our knowledge, our memories, and our problems that we fixed; And remember our high school years, because we are the class of 2006!

Hurricane Katrina

H HERFF JONES®

Hurricane Katrina became the eleventh-named storm of the Atlantic hurricane season. It was the largest hurricane of its strength category ever recorded and caused massive devastation along the coastlines of Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama.

The deadly storm formed over the Bahamas and first made landfall as a Category 1 storm just north of Miami, Fla. After weakening briefly to a tropical storm, Katrina gained momentum in the Gulf of Mexico and was upgraded to a Category 3 hurricane.

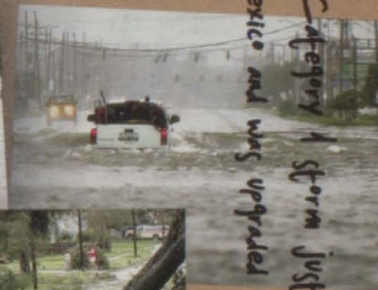

As Katrina enters the Gulf of Mexico, more than 1.2 million people along the Gulf Coast are ordered to evacuate.

Protective levees that retain Lake Pontchartrain are breached by the storm surge, flooding 80 percent of New Orleans.

On August 29 Hurricane Katrina makes landfall on the Louisiana coast with sustained winds of 125 mph and a 25-foot storm surge.

Winds rip off a large section of the Louisiana Superdome's roof as 10,000 people seek refuge inside. In the days that followed, 60,000 people gathered at the Superdome, surviving on limited food supplies and no electricity or running water.

Two weeks after Katrina made landfall, an estimated 7,000 refugees staying at the Houston Astro-dome receive government-issued debit cards worth $2,000.

Two weeks after the storm, more than half the states provided shelter to the estimated 2 million people displaced by Katrina.

For several days, authorities evacuate thousands of people from shelters throughout New Orleans.
Safety concerns and unsanitary conditions at the Superdome caused citizens to desperately plea for help on national broadcasts. Eventually, they were transported by bus to the Houston Astrodome in Texas. Officials said Texas took in nearly 154,000 evacuees across the state.

Casino resorts in Biloxi, Miss. and New Orleans suffer heavy damage as a result of Katrina.

Consumers fear a gas shortage and race to the pumps as prices soar to nearly $5 a gallon in some parts of the country.

Evacuees post messages inside the Houston
Astrodome in search of missing loved ones.

Before their preseason game against the Oakland Raiders, New Orleans Saints players observe a moment of silence for those affected by Katrina.

Within four weeks of the storm, hurricane survivors were registered in all 50 states and almost half the United States zip codes.

According to the Federal Emergency Management Agency, insurance claims in the Gulf Coast totaled $23 billion in storm damages.

Firefighters battle two fires along the Mississippi River waterfront September 3, where 50-foot flames engulf an industrial district.

National Guard troops from across the country help curb violence and looting, establish order and rescue thousands of stranded residents in New Orleans.

Katrina inflicted $75 billion in damage on the coasts of Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama, making it the most destructive and costly natural disaster in U.S. history.

Reconstruction costs from Katrina and Rita were estimated to be at least $200 billion.

On their way to the playground, students in Biloxi, Miss. walk past rubble and debris left by Katrina.

In the wake of Hurricane Katrina, New Orleans Mayor Ray Nagin releases his "Bring New Orleans Back" Commission plan aimed at rebuilding the city and its culture.

A $236 million FEMA deal with Carnival Cruise Lines is under scrutiny as three ships that are more than half empty float in the Mississippi River and Mobile Bay.

Five months after Katrina hit the Gulf Coast the death toll stood at 1,418. An additional 3,200 people were still unaccounted for in January, ranking Katrina among the deadliest hurricanes on record.

The owners of St. Rita's Nursing Home in St. Bernard Parish, La. were charged with multiple counts of negligent homicide when the bodies of 34 residents were found after apparently drowning.

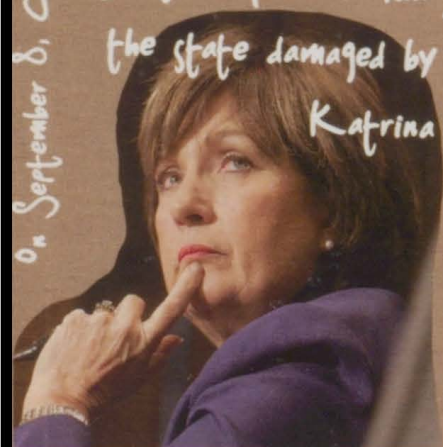

Just weeks after Katrina, Hurricane Rita develops in the Gulf of Mexico, forcing a re-evacuation of New Orleans. The storm surge overwhelmed the levee walls, reflooding parts of the city.

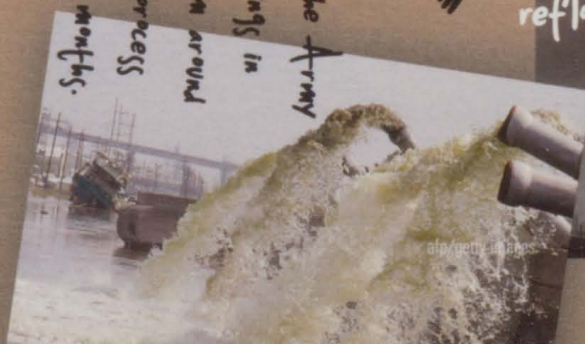

As water continues to rise in New Orleans, heavy-duty helicopters drop giant 3,000-pound sandbags into broken levees.

In New Orleans, the Army Corps of Engineers arranged for the pick-up, recycle and disposal of nearly 1,600 refrigerators per day.

Governor Kathleen Blanco of Louisiana testifies before a U.S. Senate committee and seeks aid for rebuilding parts of the state damaged by hurricanes Katrina and Rita.

To drain New Orleans, the Army Corps of Engineers brings in pumps and generators from around the nation. The draining process took approximately three months.

On September 8, Congress overwhelmingly approved a $51.8 billion emergency spending bill for hurricane relief efforts.

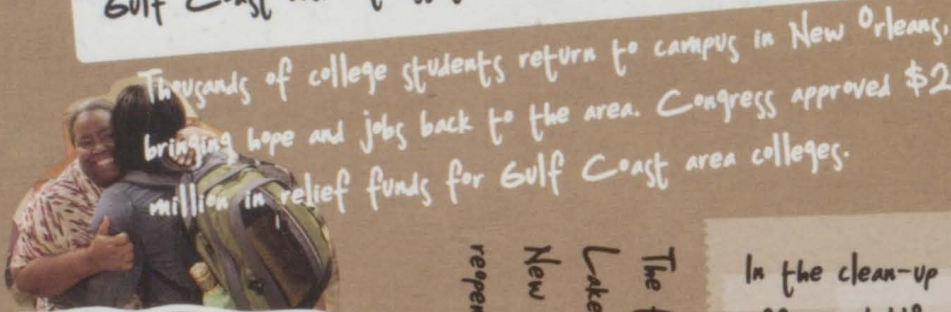

Hoping to revive the tourism industry, Gray Line New Orleans offered bus tours of Katrina-devastated areas. Seats for all three daily tours sold out. Tickets cost $35 per adult and $28 for children.

Sheet metal is put in place and will be covered with concrete to form a new floodwall in New Orleans.

The struggles and stories of 2,000 Katrina survivors were documented by researchers at Harvard University to track their recovery for government policy makers.

Women of the Storm urge members of Congress to visit the Gulf Coast and witness the massive devastation.

Thousands of college students return to campus in New Orleans, bringing hope and jobs back to the area. Congress approved $200 million in relief funds for Gulf Coast area colleges.

Johnny Wilson, 9, raised $30,000 for hurricane victims by swimming 1.4 miles from Alcatraz to the San Francisco shoreline.

The five-mile bridge over Lake Pontchartrain that links New Orleans and Slidell, La. reopened on January 6.

In the clean-up and rebuilding efforts, $118 million of FEMA assistance was distributed, 2 million cubic yards of debris were removed, and nearly a half million free meals were served before December.

Students return to school in temporary classrooms throughout devastated areas.

According to the American Red Cross, Hurricane Katrina destroyed 275,000 housing units on the Gulf Coast.

In addition to other corporate donations already made by Herff Jones, Inc., the profits from this supplement will be donated to the American Red Cross.

Overwhelmed animal shelters are aided by good Samaritans across the country who donated their time and money to house pets and livestock displaced by Katrina. More than 100 volunteers per day helped to care for and reunite these animals with their owners.

A sign of strength and hope is posted outside a home in Waveland, Miss.
